VISUAL IDENTITY SYSTEM

Brand Guidelines

One reference for color and type, so everything looks like it came from the same place. Five colors, four typefaces, a small set of rules.

Color

Five colors, no hierarchy. Any of them can lead, sit in the background, or play accent, in whatever combination fits the piece. The one constraint is contrast: each card notes whether it carries white text or large text only. Every ramp lightens the base in steps for backgrounds, borders, and hover states.

Typography

Four faces. Lato does the heavy lifting in body copy; the other three carry headings. When more than one heading face would work, choose what fits the space, then fall back to priority order: Josefin Sans, then Montserrat, then Bebas Neue.

Lato

BODY · MOST USED

Body · captions · everything textual

Lato is the foundation. It sets paragraphs, lists, captions, and any block of text a reader actually reads. It stays calm so the headings can do the talking, and it holds up at small sizes where the display faces would not.

AaBbCcDdEe 0123456789 · Regular, Bold, Black · Italic

Regular 400 for body, 700 for emphasis. Line height ~1.6 for comfortable reading.

Josefin Sans

HEADERS · 1ST CHOICE

Primary heading face · eyebrows · pull quotes

The first choice for headings & titles

AaBbCcDdEe 0123456789 · geometric, high-waisted, distinctive

700 for titles, 600 for subheads; uppercase + wide tracking for eyebrows.

Montserrat

HEADERS · 2ND CHOICE

Section headers · buttons · UI labels

Clear section headings and interface text

AaBbCcDdEe 0123456789 — the dependable workhorse heading face

Weights 500 / 600 / 700. Tighten tracking slightly on large sizes.

Display · oversized headlines & numerals

FOR THE OCCASIONAL BIG MOMENT

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ 0123456789

All caps by nature, one weight. The least-used face: reserve it for oversized display and large numerals, never for body.

HIERARCHY

Type scale

The order things stack in, from loudest to quietest. Josefin Sans leads the headings, Montserrat backs it up, and Bebas Neue appears only for oversized display.

Heading 1	JOSEFIN SANS 700 ~2.1rem and up · primary heading face
Heading 2	MONTSERRAT 700 1.6–2.6rem · tracking –.015em
Heading 3	JOSEFIN SANS 600 1.25rem · accent subheads
EYEBROW / KICKER	JOSEFIN SANS 600 .8rem · uppercase · tracking .28em
DISPLAY	BEBAS NEUE oversized only · uppercase · the least-used face

Body copy is set in Lato at a comfortable reading size with generous line height.

LATO 400

1rem / 17px · line-height 1.6

Captions, footnotes, and metadata sit quietly beneath.

APPLIED

The system together

Color and type doing their jobs at once, plus the short list of rules that keeps it consistent.

JOSEFIN EYEBROW

Josefin heading with a teal word

Body text in Lato sits underneath, calm and readable, while the heading carries the weight. Any color can take the lead; here Navy holds the field and teal does the pointing.

✓ Do

- Let Lato carry all real reading; reserve the other three for headings.
- Choose heading faces by fit, then priority: Josefin Sans, Montserrat, Bebas Neue.
- Mix and match the five colors freely; they are peers, not a ranking.
- Keep white text on the darker colors; keep any Lilac text large.

✗ Don't

- Set body copy in Bebas Neue or in all caps.
- Place small text on a Lilac background; contrast falls short.
- Lean on Bebas for everyday headings; it is the least-used display face.
- Crowd one composition with more than two heading faces.
